The entire city of New Orleans becomes one big party during Mardi Gras, but Delfeayo Marsalis and the Uptown Jazz Orchestra know that there's no place to be quite like Uptown on Mardi Gras Day. With their latest album, due out February 3, 2023, the UJO provides the ultimate soundtrack for Carnival Time in the Crescent City with a spirited collection of Mardi Gras classics and buoyant new originals. A celebration like no other, this album is a unique combination of big band swing feel, small group jazz spirit, and brass band funkiness that would feel equally buoyant on the parade route or in the concert hall.

In addition to the close-knit ensemble of gifted New Orleans musicians that makes up the UJO, UoMGD features guest appearances by Branford Marsalis on saxophone, drummer Marvin "Smitty" Smith, and vocalists Glen-David Andrews, Dr. Brice Miller, and Tonya Boyd-Cannon. All of the arrangements for the session were crafted by both Marsalis and UJO trumpeter Andrew Baham, who also contributes vocals on several tracks. "This album is a celebration of the greatness of New Orleans music and culture," Marsalis says. "We play with the feeling of an R&B group, but add the rich harmonies and textures that you can only get from a larger band. It's the only collection of modern big band versions of Mardi Gras music to date, so we want folks to feel like they're in the streets with us catching beads and doubloons."

From the iconic classics Carnival Time, Big Chief, and Mardi Gras Mambo to the original, UoMGD, Midnight at the Zulu Ball, and Uptown Boogie, this instant classic has the type of energy and excitement that will put listeners in a good mood all year round!
